

Time to Blow the Whistle

on Monkey Experiments

The project that is currently under construction on South Parks Rd, Oxford, will not only house animals but will be a centre of animal suffering. The building work being carried out here does not represent a scientific miracle as you are led to believe but another step back for common sense and compassion.

Cambridge University recently abandoned plans to build Europe's largest primate lab in the face of overwhelming public opinion. Do not let this site at Oxford become the next primate prison.

If you have any information that could help stop this outrage, please contact us, anonymously if you wish.
